NATIONAL SOCIETY

OF THE

SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY GENERAL

President General
Hon. Cornelius A. Pugley
New York

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 15, 1906.

No I OFFICIAL BULLETIN #2

The OFFICIAL BULLETIN, issued from time to time as may seem expedient, contains information as to official action by the General officers, the Board of Managers, the Executive and other National Committees, notice of members deceased, records of new members enrolled by the Registrar General, and changes in officers and important doings of State Societies.

State Secretaries are requested to promptly communicate to the Secretary General brief abstracts of meetings or celebrations by their Societies. Information is desired as to newspapers devoting space to patriotic societies on certain days of each week.

The BULLETIN is sent to the General officers and Managers and the National Committees, to new members whose records are printed therein, to a number of newspapers, and a moderate supply to State Secretaries for general distribution. Additional copies will be furnished to State Societies, in any number desired, at three cents each.

The Congress of 1907 will be held in Denver, Colorado.

INCORPORATION.—The first meeting of the incorporators of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, duly called under the provisions of section 5 of the Act of Congress approved June 9, 1906 (see National Year Book for 1906, pp. 94-96), was held at the New Willard Hotel in the City of Washington on November 17, 1906. A number of the incorporators named in the charter were present, and the meeting was organized by the election of Hon. Morris B. Beardsley as Chairman and Mr. A. Howard Clark as Secretary. Resolutions offered by Hon. Henry Stockbridge were duly seconded and adopted, accepting the charter of incorporation granted by Congress, and authorizing and directing the President and Secretary of the meeting, and of the corporation when elected, to execute and file in the office of the Secretary of State a certificate of the acceptance of the charter conformably to the provisions of section 6 of the Act.

A Constitution and By-Laws were then adopted and officers elected to serve until the next annual meeting of the corporation, to be held at the time of the Annual Congress of the National Society. The officers of the corporation elected were a President, five Vice-Presidents, a Secretary and a Treasurer, being the same persons as the corresponding General officers of the National Society.

The certificate of acceptance of the charter, signed by Morris B. Beardsley, A. Howard Clark, and Cornelius A. Pugsley, was filed in the office of the Secretary of State on November 23, 1906, thus perfecting the corporation.

MEETING OF GENERAL MANAGERS AND EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE NOVEMBER 26, 1906.

A meeting of the General Managers and the Executive Committee of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, duly called by the President General, certified by the Secretary General under the provisions of Art. V, Sec. 2 of the Constitution, was held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City, at 2 o'clock p. m., November 26, 1906. Those present were President General C. A. Pugsley, presiding; Vice-Presidents General Dr. Moses G. Parker, Hon. Henry Stockbridge, and Mr. Andrew W. Bray; Secretary General A. Howard Clark; Treasurer General I. W. Birdseye; President J. H. Moore of the District of Columbia Society; President William A. Marble, of the Empire State Society; Mr. Nelson A. McClary, Mr. Trueman G. Avery, Gen. Edwin S. Greeley, and Mr. H. V. A. Joslin, members of the Executive Committee; also Hon. Morris B. Beardsley, Chairman of the Charter Committee, Howard De Haven Ross, Chairman of the Recruiting Committee, and Vice-President L. B. Curtis of the Connecticut Society.

The minutes of the meeting of the General Managers held in Boston, May 1, 1906, were approved.

Mr. Beardsley reported for the Charter Committee that on June 9, 1906, President Roosevelt had approved the Act of Congress constituting the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution "a body corporate and politic, in the City of Washington, in the District of Columbia"; that the charter had been formally accepted by the Corporators at a meeting held in Washington, November 17; and that a certificate of acceptance of the charter had been duly filed in the office of the Secretary of State. Mr. Beardsley reported that the corporators had adopted a temporary Constitution and By-Laws and had elected officers to serve until the annual meeting of the Corporation, to be held at the time of the next annual Congress of the National Society.

After consideration of the report of Mr. Beardsley it was voted that the Committee on Revision of the Constitution and By-Laws, authorized by the Boston Congress, be requested in their work of revision to devise a practical plan for the consolidation of the Corporation and the present National Society. It was voted that Mr. Stockbridge be added to the Revision Committee.

The Chairman of the Committee on Education, in a letter to the President General, reported progress, and it was voted that it be suggested to that Committee to make arrangements through State Boards of Education for such instruction in public schools as shall teach true citizenship, and that the Committee formulate a plan for a wide distribution of the Society's tract on "A welcome to immigrants, and some good advice," through the United States Immigration Bureau.

Mr. Ross, for the Recruiting Committee, reported that letters had been received looking to the formation of new societies in Mississippi and some other States, and that interest was being aroused in North Carolina, South Carolina, and North Dakota.

Commander Moore, for the Naval Records Committee, reported that the measure recommended by the Boston Congress had been enacted into law and that the Secretary of the Navy was taking steps to bring together the Naval records of the Revolutionary War.

Mr. Joslin reported that the Publication Committee had formulated a plan for publishing National and State Society news in an OFFICIAL BULLETIN, the first one having been issued under date of October 15. It is proposed to distribute the BULLETIN as widely as the resources of the National Society will permit and, with the coöperation of any State Societies, it may be sent to all the individual members thereof.

After careful consideration and full discussion of invitations to hold the Congress of 1907 in Norfolk, Buffalo, and Denver, and other localities, it was decided that the next Congress should be held in the far West, and it was thereupon voted to accept the invitation of the Colorado Society and to hold the Eighteenth Congress in the City of Denver.

It was voted that $500 be appropriated toward the expenses of the Denver Congress.

Mr. W. H. Bayly, Commander J. H. Moore, and Mr. A. Howard Clark were appointed a Committee to investigate and report to the next Congress upon the advisability, practicability, and possibility of establishing and maintaining in conjunction with other similar organizations in the City of Washington a central Bureau of Records, Research, and Information on the plan proposed by the Benjamin Franklin Chapter of the Ohio Society at the Boston Congress.

The resolution offered at the Boston Congress to make and establish the twenty-third of September as a day to be annually commemorated by the Navy of the United States, to be known as "Paul Jones Day," was referred to the Naval Records Committee for consideration and report.

The President General announced the death on July 19, 1906, of Walter Seth Logan, ex-President General of the National Society, and it was voted that General E. S. Greeley, Hon. Morris B. Beardsley, and Mr. William A. Marble be a Committee to report commemorative resolutions for action at the Denver Congress.

The President General also announced the death on November 12, 1906, of William Rufus Shafter, Major General U. S. Army, a member of the California Society, and it was voted that an expression of sorrow be entered on the records and communicated to the California Society.

The President General invited those present at the meeting to participate in the Annual Banquet of the Empire State Society at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel that evening.

There being no further business, the meeting then adjourned.

A. HOWARD CLARK,
Secretary General.

EDUCATIONAL COMMITTEE.

The Educational Committee has received suggestions from various sources concerning the plan of work proposed in its report to the Boston Congress. The Committee issued on November 6, a circular letter requesting further suggestions in order that there may be an interchange of opinions among members, and that State organizations may have the benefit of each other's experience. The Chairman of the Committee is Rev. Rufus W. Clark, 24 Buhl Block, Detroit, Mich.

Among the suggestions and reports of work done are the following:

I think the work proposed is fundamental, and should be the first work undertaken by the Society.—Charles W. Needham, President of the George Washington University, Washington, D. C.

Educational work is worthy of the best efforts of our Society. The marking of historical sites and the preservation of documents have been well done; there is much which is of equal importance. The condition of our country, subject as it is and will be to the influx of vast hordes of not too desirable foreigners, needs the constant care of our best people; unless we can Americanize them they will ruin us. To no set of people does the task appeal so much as to the descendants of early settlers. Patriotic societies can do no nobler work.—Morris B. Beardsley, Bridgeport, Conn.

My idea of what can be done is something like this: to have printed a pamphlet embodying a brief statement of the views of the Committee; suggestions as to the study of local obligations and special meetings for the purpose. Statements also as to possible work in public schools.—W. K. Wickes, Syracuse, N. Y.

The watchword of the Society should be "Patriotic Education," with emphasis on both words.—Dr. E. D. Gardiner, President of the Ohio Society.

The Missouri Society is about to take up the subjects suggested by the Committee. We have published for general circulation 500 copies of an address by Rev. N. Luccock on "Revolution and Evolution." This is good educational work and has done the Society good.—Ashley Cabell, President of the Missouri Society.

The Wisconsin Society's work is among the immigrants of 16 years of age and upwards; they who are already here and those who are to arrive need to be instructed as to the laws of and their duty to their adopted country. The roster of those who served in the Civil and Spanish wars is helping us in this work.—J. F. Pierce, President of the Wisconsin Society.

The Michigan Society has brought the subject of instruction in our early history and the principles of American government before the authorities of our public schools in Detroit. They have the matter well in hand, and are seeing to it that the voter of the future is instructed in what is required of a citizen. It is important here, in Detroit, where not far from 70 per cent. are foreign born, or of foreign parentage.—Rufus G. Lathrop, Secretary of the Michigan Society.

WORK OF STATE SOCIETIES.

✓ GRAVES OF THE SIGNERS.—At the Congress in Independence Hall in 1905, a resolution was discussed and referred to the Pennsylvania Society to provide for more fitly marking the grave at Chester, Pa., of John Morton, signer of the Declaration of Independence.

A committee was appointed by the Philadelphia Chapter, with Major Moses Veale as chairman, and the work accomplished is told in an illustrated pamphlet of twenty pages entitled "Graves of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence from Pennsylvania," with the following preface:

The Philadelphia Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution, realizing how greatly the American people are indebted to the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, and that every honor possible should be shown to their memories, have deemed it a very worthy and proper work to place in some permanent form the history of the graves of the Signers, where they are located, how they are marked, and what care is bestowed upon them; and, as far as possible, where the graves are not marked by some monument or tombstone, to create sufficient interest among the Sons of the American Revolution to have the graves properly marked.

The remains of James Wilson, one of the Pennsylvania Signers, brought from Edenton, North Carolina, were recently reinterred in Philadelphia with National and State honors. The ceremonies were in charge of the Governor of Pennsylvania and the James Wilson Memorial Committee. The Sons of the American Revolution were represented by a committee of the State Society.

A resolution will be introduced at the Denver Congress providing for a National Committee to carry forward in other States the work so well begun by the Philadelphia Chapter.

THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA SOCIETY held its initial meeting of the season on November 21, when Hon. Henry Stockbridge delivered an address on immigration. He urged the Society to take active steps to reach the masses of foreigners in our country, especially the aliens crowding in upon our shores, and to teach them practical lessons of patriotism and true citizenship. He urged reform in the naturalization laws. So long as it is possible in nine States that a foreigner after twenty-four hours' presence in this country can take out naturalization papers and cast his ballot, the institutions of the nation are alarmingly unsafe and insecure.

THE EMPIRE STATE SOCIETY held its seventeenth annual banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City, on the evening of November 26, the 123d anniversary of the evacuation of New York by the British in 1783. More than three hundred members, ladies, and other guests were present. President Marble delivered an address of welcome and presided as toastmaster. Among the speakers were President General Pugsley, Rev. J. Herman Randall, D. D., Hon. Charles E. Hughes, Governor-elect of New York, and Rev. Willard Scott, D. D.

President General Pugsley's address was as follows:

PATRIOTISM AND GOOD CITIZENSHIP.

MR. PRESIDENT, LADIES, AND GENTLEMEN: We glory, as Sons of the American Revolution, in the heroic deeds of our fathers, and we celebrate tonight one of the most important events in their struggle for independence, an event which was the consummation of their hopes, the evacuation by the British of the City of New York, the end at last of their mighty conflict for liberty.

But we do well, however, to remember, as we glory in the valor of our fathers, that—

"Those who on glorious ancestors enlarge, Produce their debt, instead of their discharge."

I do not wonder, when we dwell too much upon our ancestral lines that some one should slyly say: "When a man's talk is mainly of his ancestors you may know that the best of the family is under ground."

But we glory tonight not alone in the deeds of the patriots of '76, but in the perpetuation of those great principles and ideals of government for which our fathers battled, and which through all the years of our country's history have been maintained by the courage and the devotion of patriotic men and women.

As I read the pages of our nation's history, of her great battlefields, I have but one sentiment, glory, eternal glory and honor for the American soldier and sailor, regular and volunteer alike, whose sublime daring from Lexington to Gettysburg and to San Juan Hill and into the Philippines means that America stands obedient to the divine behest that called her into being; means that amid all the commercialism of today the true blood of patriotism still flows; means that all the great problems now confronting us in our governmental life, whether internal or external, whether diplomatic or administrative, whether the control of gigantic corporations or the status of the Monroe Doctrine, will be solved in the interests of the people, will be solved as promptly as the importance of the problems will permit, will be solved by a wise statesmanship that has ever been ours, a patriotic statesmanship like that of James A. Garfield, who in a critical period of our nation's life stilled the tumultuous passions of men's hearts by the single sentence: "God reigns, and the Government at Washington still lives."

We may rejoice that patriotism belongs not alone to any age, but to every age, and not alone to war, but is a mighty factor in times of peace. It may lie far below the surface of our ordinary life, yet when the State or nation is imperiled, it breaks forth and sweeps before it all those influences that are detrimental or harmful to the body politic, and builds up those that are for the betterment of the State and Nation. It means a great deal for the stability of this republic if truth, honesty, duty, obligation to high ideals and lofty ambition, none of which may be measured by a monetary standard, are not lost, but still abide and inspire the people of these United States. Well did our most distinguished compatriot, Theodore Roosevelt, say: "It is of mighty small importance whether we are Republicans or Democrats, but it is of very real importance that we should be good Americans and do our duty in a straight and decent fashion."

We are justly proud of our great State of New York; proud of our level-headed, honest Governor-elect, Charles E. Hughes, who is with us tonight; proud of her magnificent area, proud of her citizenship, proud of her educational and financial institutions,—yes, proud even of her life insurance companies. Ever has New York stood foremost in the history of the nation! Ever have her citizens been jealous of her honor among the States! Never, I believe, will they long permit her fair name to be sullied either by graft in politics, graft in commercial life, or graft in her great financial institutions. With that rugged honesty, which has been the heritage from our fathers, I believe that the people of this State and Nation, and especially the members of this great patriotic society, will stand and stand firmly for those great principles and ideals of government that make for good American citizenship.

In the maintenance of those principles, which are as distinctly ours today as they were the early patriots', I believe that this organization, and other kindred organizations like that of the Daughters of the American Revolution, should, and do, play a most important part. These organizations are doing a magnificent work not only in building monuments, in marking battlefields, but they are instilling in the youth of this broad land principles of patriotism, and are educating our foreign-born population for good citizenship.

One of the greatest problems now confronting us is the Americanizing of the vast hordes of immigrants that are weekly landed upon our shores. I do not wonder that the wit of Ellis Island some time ago, when he saw something like 50,000 immigrants landed in New York in less than a week, said dryly: "I don't suppose they have left a soul in Europe, except American tourists."

I believe we should gladly welcome to our shores the honest, upright sons of other lands, but we do not want the criminals, the paupers; the off-scourings of Europe. We do not want our citizenship weakened. We do not want our high ideals lowered. We do not want our American customs, our American institutions, our American Sunday disregarded. We do not want license masquerading as liberty. We want men of brawn, brain, muscle. We want men of integrity of character, high ideals, sturdy patriotism. We want the men who will become American in spirit, as well as American in citizenship. We have reason to rejoice that we have been so successful in Americanizing immigrants, and that their children go forth with ours from the public schools of the land with the Star Spangled Banner waving over their heads, singing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," Americans, every one of them.

Our fathers nursed those "household virtues," and so should we, "whereon rests the unconquerable State, and sung the cradle songs that are the true foundations of anthems."

If this nation is to take the lead in the march of human progress, in the onward sweep of civilization along the higher plane of humanity, our boasted liberty must not degenerate into license, and we must know—

"When to take occasion by the hand
And make the bounds of freedom wider yet."

I believe that through an enduring patriotism, a patriotism born of moral courage, the people of these United States will behold with the republic's ever increasing years an ever increasing grandeur, majesty and power worthy of the men who in all its generations have stood for the highest and best in our national life.

Behind this great organization, the Sons of the American Revolution, is a wealth of tradition. May it be so perpetuated that if the day demands it the State of Connecticut, represented here tonight by her Governor-elect and other worthy compatriots, will furnish another Nathan Hale. May it be so perpetuated that, if the day demands it, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts will furnish patriots like those that stood at Lexington, and Concord and Bunker Hill. May it be so perpetuated, that the State of New York and the State of New Jersey will produce unnumbered heroes, while from other States and territories of this great land will come regiments and armies of fearless men of strong courage and sturdy patriotism, who will stand not alone for military prowess, but preëminent for good citizenship. And among them may there be found, if the day demands it, another Washington, another Grant, and another Lincoln.

Governor-elect Hughes, in his speech, said:

When we contemplate our ancestral stocks we are impressed with the variety of relations made possible under our democratic institutions by a wise selection of forebears. For mere pride of descent, however, I have scant respect. The distinction of ancestors is naught but humiliation for unworthy descendants.

It is our duty not simply to be ready to spring to the defense of the country; it is our duty not simply to exercise intelligently the right of suffrage; it is our duty not simply to obey the laws—it is the most paramount and patriotic duty to exhibit in simple, righteous and kindly living the true American spirit.

There is too much vague love of country. What is needed today is love of country expressed in terms which men on the streets would understand. This would make the country's industrial life sweet and clean.

Some men would lay down their lives for their country in times of war, but in times of peace are content to promote their own benefit and to adhere only closely enough to right conduct to keep them out of jail.

We want men who will not be a menace in times of peace. We want patriots in finance and in the organization of corporations who are willing to share the burdens of their fellow-men and equalize the opportunities of society. The true American spirit makes brothers of us all.

THE HAWAIIAN SOCIETY commemorated the 125th anniversary of the surrender at Yorktown, October 19, 1781, by the issuance of a circular summarizing the history of the Society and urging its members to renewed patriotic endeavor. The Society celebrated the Fourth of July, 1906, by appropriate exercises and was represented on a committee to award a prize to the teacher in the schools of the Territory who should give the best plan for a patriotic exercise.

THE ILLINOIS SOCIETY held its annual meeting at the Hamilton Club, Chicago, on December 3, the anniversary of the admission of Illinois into the Union. The Society numbers 526 members. The following officers were elected: President, Major Edgar B. Tolman, 108 La Salle St., Chicago; Vice-Presidents, Horace Kent Tenney and John Shepherd; Secretary, John D. Vandercock, 188 Madison Street; Treasurer, James H. Gilbert; Registrar, Porter B. Fitzgerald; Historian, James Edgar Brown; Chaplain, Charles Herbert Young; Sergeant-at-arms, Eames MacVeagh. There was presented to E. C. Sturges a medal of honor, awarded by the National Society for his patriotic service in the War with Spain. An oration on "Our Pilgrim Fathers" was delivered by Mr. Luther Laffin Mills.

✓ THE MARYLAND SOCIETY on October 19 elected the following officers: President, Hon. Henry Stockbridge; Vice-Presidents, J. Noble Stockett, Yates Sterling, Edwin Warfield, George W. Hyde, and George L. Van Bibber; Secretary, R. Fuller Shryock, 318 St. Paul Street, Baltimore; Treasurer, R. Ross Holloway; and Registrar, George W. McCreary, 300 St. Paul Street, Baltimore.

✓ THE MICHIGAN SOCIETY Historical Section met on November 30 to discuss "The Critical Period Following the Treaty of Peace." Rev. Dr. R. W. Clark stated the conditions connected with the adoption of the preliminary treaty of 1782. The paper of the evening was by Harlow P. Davock on the difficulties attending the breaking down of local and provincial claims and prerogatives for the creating of a central government. He covered the period from 1782 to 1789. Frank D. Taylor led the discussion, dwelling upon the personnel of the time. Col. Oscar A. Janes related the part taken by the soldier and his settlement in this territory. James Cosslett Smith called to mind the compromises necessary at the time in dealing with social questions, more especially in dealing with slavery. C. M. Woodruff showed the prophetic character of the framers of the constitution. Charles Wright spoke of the problem of representation in the two houses of the legislative part of the Government. George W. Bates traced the principles of this representation to its sources; Dr. S. H. Knight pointed out the distinctions between a monarchical and representative government; and Dr. Connor showed what really had been accomplished in the substitution of a power in the place of a king, showing for the first time in the history of the world the enthronement of the principles of "religion, morality and knowledge" as set forth in the instrument of the organization of the territory of the northwest, the formation of this territory being the first act of the Government in its federal capacity.

✓ THE PAUL JONES CLUB of Portsmouth, N. H., composed of members of the New Hampshire, Maine, and Massachusetts Societies, was organized November 1, 1896. At its annual meeting on November 2, 1906, the following officers were elected: President, William L. Hill; Vice-President, William A. Hodgdon; Secretary, George A. Wood; Treasurer, John K. Bates; Chaplain, William H. Smith; Historian, Oliver P. Remick; Auditor, Dr. William O. Junkins; Chairman of Board of Managers, Admiral Joseph Foster. A marker fund was established to provide markers for the graves of Revolutionary soldiers in the vicinity of Portsmouth. There was printed in the Portsmouth Herald of October 17, and reprinted in the Granite Monthly of November, 1906, an article by Admiral Foster entitled "Burgoyne's Surrender—Portsmouth Revolutionary Tablets."

✓ THE VERMONT SOCIETY held its annual meeting at Montpelier on November 21. The annual fee was increased from one dollar to two dollars, the additional revenue to be used for marking historic spots and the graves of Revolutionary heroes, and Lieutenant Governor Fisk, Hon. John A. Mead, and Mr. W. T. Dewey were appointed a committee to recommend the expenditure of this fund and were empowered to appoint a subcommittee of one in each county of the State. A committee was also appointed to urge an appropriation by the State for a monument to Col. Seth Warner, a leader of the Green Mountain Boys. The Secretary of the Society has compiled a list of 5,651 Revolutionary soldiers who lived and died in Vermont. The Society endorsed the proposal to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the discovery of Lake Champlain. Officers elected were as follows: President, William James Van Patten, Burlington; Vice-President, William E. Hawks, Bennington; Secretary, Walter H. Crockett, St. Albans; Treasurer, Clarence L. Smith, Burlington; Registrar, Henry L. Stillson, Bennington; Historian, George G. Benedict, Burlington; Chaplain, Rev. Milton L. Severance.
