PRIZE INSIGNIA.—With a view to arouse the younger generation in the Society's work, a generous compatriot has again presented to the National Society a gold ceremonial badge to be awarded at the next Congress to the State Society which enrolls during the current Society year the greatest proportionate number of sons of present members. As in previous years, it is the desire of the donor that the Society receiving the badge shall present it through competition or other selection to one of the sons thus enrolled. About 65 sons of members were enrolled during the past year and the prize was awarded to the New Jersey Society, which recruited 21 young men.

THE NATIONAL YEAR BOOK FOR 1914 has been printed and the official distribution made as directed by the Board of Trustees. Additional copies were also sent to State Societies subscribing for them prior to July 1 on the terms of circular notice. There remains a few copies available to members desiring them at fifty cents each, postpaid. It is a book of 374 pages, containing a list of General Officers and of National Committees of 1914; National Charter, Constitution, and By-Laws; General Officers, 1889 to 1914; officers of State Societies and Local Chapters; Proceedings of the Syracuse Congress; records, with pedigrees, of members enrolled from May 1, 1913, to April 30, 1914.

✓ EDUCATION OF ALIENS.

The Committee on Information for Aliens continues constantly to be called upon to provide large numbers of the National Society leaflets, particularly for use in night schools, in the large cities. There is an increasing demand for the leaflets on naturalization and the Constitution of the United States. Great good is being accomplished by this work of the Sons of the American Revolution among the younger generation of aliens.

Leaflets Nos. 1, 2, and 3 will be sent in any quantity desired to any address free of charge on application to the chairman of the committee, Commander John H. Moore, U. S. N., The Wyoming, Washington, D. C. No. 1 Leaflet, "Information for Immigrants Concerning the United States: Its Opportunities, Government, and Institutions," is printed in English, Italian, Yiddish, Polish, Magyar, Slovenian, Slovak, Croatian, Swedish, Greek, Bohemian, German, Norwegian, Danish, and Lithuanian. No. 2 Leaflet, on "Naturalization of Aliens in the United States: How to become citizens; what is required; rights and duties," and No. 3 Leaflet, "The Constitution of the United States of America," are printed only in English.

An analysis of the 1910 census shows that the white population of the United States amounted to 81,731,000, of which the so-called native stock constituted 60.5 per cent, and the three great linguistic families of foreign stock from northwestern Europe 27.1 per cent, making a total of 87.6 per cent. The elements from southern and eastern Europe, considered the least desirable peoples, constitute therefore less than 13 per cent of the population. It is in the education of these latter peoples that the most energetic work is needed. Census statistics also show that of the 26,999,151 men of twenty-one years of age and over in continental United States 9,188,454 are foreign-born white, negroes, Chinamen, Japanese, and other races; 3,043,117 foreign-born white men, about 45 per cent of the total of that class, are naturalized citizens. Germans of foreign birth are in the majority and 69 per cent of them are naturalized. Of 2,631,458 natives of southern and eastern Europe only 22 per cent are naturalized. Of the natives of Ireland in this country 67 per cent are naturalized, 62 per cent of the Swedes, while of the 255,847 Hungarians only 14 per cent have become naturalized.

At the Syracuse Congress Commander Moore, chairman of this committee, called attention to the great good that would result by making the ceremony of naturalization more formal and impressive than has been customary. In this line of patriotic activity the Young Men's Christian Association at Brockton, Mass., on June 1 gave its second annual reception to New American Citizens, when there was a program of music; a civic welcome by the Mayor; response by one of the new citizens; patriotic welcome by a member of the D. A. R.; pledge to the flag, and an address on "Our Citizenship." In the company were nearly 200 former citizens of foreign lands.

WASHINGTON GUARD.

At the Syracuse Congress the organization of "The Washington Guard of the New Jersey Society" was explained and discussed as set forth in detail in the National Year Book for 1914, pages 100-102, 109-111. The Guard is made up of sons of members under the age of twenty-one years and other youths of like age likewise eligible. The New Jersey Guard numbers more than 300 members and is constantly increasing. There are no dues nor initiation fees, but the Guard is financed by the State Society and by private subscriptions. Special rosettes and certificates are furnished to each member. Other State Societies are considering the formation of a Washington Guard. Information concerning the organization may be obtained from John Lenord Merrill, President of the New Jersey Society, 517 Park avenue, East Orange, N. J.

REVOLUTIONARY RECORDS.

The Congress of the United States has omitted to make appropriation during the present fiscal year for the work begun a year ago by the War and Navy Departments in copying and classifying, with a view to publication, the scattered military and naval records of the Revolutionary War.

The National Society has recently been fortunate in securing a copy of the Register of Certificates issued by Paymaster General John Pierce under order of Congress of July 4, 1783. The work was printed, in 1786, in four volumes and only three complete sets are known. It gives the names of about 90,000 officers and soldiers of the Continental Army who served to the end of the war and to whom final-settlement, interest-bearing certificates to include all and every demand for service were issued, aggregating about $10,500,000. In 1778 military officers commissioned by the Continental Congress, who should serve to the end of the war, had been promised half pay for seven years after the expiration of the war; in 1780 this was changed to half pay for life, and on March 22, 1783, on petition of the officers, it was again modified to commutation of five years' full pay in lieu of half pay for life. Non-commissioned officers and privates were promised the sum of $80.

The names are not alphabetically arranged in the Register, nor is the residence or service stated; but this information is in most cases available through a manuscript key.

✓ NATIONAL ARCHIVES BUILDING.

The Sundry Civil Act, approved by President Wilson August 1, 1914, provides the following appropriation: "For employment of technical and engineering services in the office of the supervising architect for the preparation of designs and estimates for the National Archives building, as authorized in the public buildings act approved March fourth, nineteen hundred and thirteen, $5,000."

This item is one which was urged by President General Thruston and a committee of the National Society as a step toward the preservation of the invaluable records of the Federal Government now scattered in various buildings in Washington, where they are in constant danger of destruction.

✓ ADDITIONS TO MEMBERSHIP.

There was enrolled by the Registrar General from May 1 to September 30, 1914, a total of 275 members in 31 State Societies as follows: California, 8; Colorado, 3; Connecticut, 21; Delaware, 5; Illinois, 33; Indiana, 5; Iowa, 1; Kansas, 2; Kentucky, 3; Louisiana, 1; Maine, 3; Maryland, 9; Massachusetts, 37; Michigan, 20; Missouri, 2; Nebraska, 13; New Hampshire, 2; New Jersey, 35; New Mexico, 1; New York (Empire State), 26; North Dakota, 3; Ohio, 11; Oregon, 8; Pennsylvania, 3; Philippines, 1; South Dakota, 2; Tennessee, 4; Utah, 2; Virginia, 1; Washington, 9; Wisconsin, 1.

Among the new members is an actual son of a soldier of the Revolution enrolled in Tennessee.

✓ CELEBRATION OF WASHINGTON'S JOURNEY IN 1775.

To commemorate the completion of its first quarter of a century of patriotic activity the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution celebrated the 139th anniversary of the memorable journey of Gen. George Washington, in 1775, from Philadelphia to take his place as Commander-in-Chief of the American forces encamped at Cambridge, an army of some eighteen thousand patriot yeomanry hastily gathered to prevent further incursions of the British army from Boston after the fights at Lexington and Concord.

The celebration of this event was the most ambitious undertaking in the history of the Society. It had been suggested to the Annual Congress at Chicago, in May, 1913, by the George Washington Chapter of Springfield, Mass. The suggestion was at once adopted and a committee of fifteen was authorized, three from each of the five States along the route, to carry out a plan to mark the way with appropriate tablets and to organize a pilgrimage of members of the Society to repeat the journey in automobiles, traversing as nearly as practicable the identical highways taken by Washington and his party from June 23 to July 2, 1775. The National Committee of Fifteen was organized, with the President General and the Secretary General as the chairman and the secretary ex officio, and local committees were appointed by the several State Societies to arrange and carry out appropriate ceremonies at various stopping places.

The principal objects of the celebration were to inspire the community at large with a more profound reverence for the founders of our nation, to encourage historical research in relation to the American Revolution, to arouse greater interest in the preservation of our national traditions, and to create a more active spirit of patriotism throughout the region traversed.

Detailed plans were carefully considered and were most successfully carried out. Everywhere, from Philadelphia to Cambridge, cities, towns, villages, and hamlets vied with one another in making the anniversary a memorable one. The enthusiasm often amounted to an ovation to the President General and his party such as could hardly have been exceeded had Washington himself been in command of the pilgrimage. The thousands who viewed the processions and listened to the addresses felt that they were thus honoring the memory of the great Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army. The celebration was a splendid success; its objects were accomplished. The Daughters of the American Revolution at many places generously co-operated in entertaining the pilgrims and largely participated in the local exercises.

On June 22 the pilgrims assembled in Philadelphia and were the guests of the Pennsylvania State Society and the Philadelphia Chapter on an automobile trip to Germantown and Valley Forge. In the evening there was a banquet to commemorate the dinner given to Washington on the eve of his departure for Cambridge.

On the morning of the 23d about seventy-five members of the Society and ladies began the pilgrimage under the leadership of President General Rogers Clark Ballard Thruston and Chief Marshal Henry Fuller Punderson of Springfield, who was first to suggest the celebration. Trenton was reached about noon, and the remainder of that day as well as Wednesday and until Thursday afternoon were devoted to journeyings and celebrations in New Jersey. At about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, June 25, New York city was reached and the party remained there until Saturday morning, when the journey was resumed toward New Haven, which was reached Saturday evening. After various ceremonies on Sunday in that city the pilgrimage left on Monday morning for Wethersfield and Hartford, where it tarried during Monday night.

A feature of the journey through Connecticut was the enthusiasm shown by the small towns along the route. Flags were displayed everywhere in profusion. Here and there were tableaux representing incidents in the life of Washington, and frequently there were groups in Colonial costumes and many exhibits of Revolutionary and early Colonial memorials on the lawns where the pilgrims tarried by the way.

On Tuesday the party proceeded to Springfield, Mass., thence on Wednesday to Worcester. On Thursday, July 2, the journey was completed to Watertown and Boston. On Friday the celebration culminated with appropriate ceremonies beneath the Washington Elm in Cambridge, where Washington, on July 3, 1775, unsheathed his sword as Commander-in-Chief of the Provincial Army.

It is impracticable in the OFFICIAL BULLETIN to do more than to give summarized accounts, under "Doings of State Societies," of some of the more important ceremonies and functions along the route. The President General was constantly called upon to make addresses, and Compatriot Newell B. Woodworth, Col. R. W. Guthrie, and Gen. Philip Reade, and others of the party ably assisted in many programs.

In advance of the celebration, there was issued by the National Society an illustrated pamphlet giving an account of the original journey. A few copies of this book are still available, at 50 cents each, on application to the Secretary General.

The Ancient, a monthly periodical "devoted to the interests of the veteran military organizations, the organized militia, and the patriotic societies," published at 109 Barristers' Hall, Boston, Mass., has printed in recent numbers some photographs illustrating the Washington Journey Pilgrimage and some articles by Gen. Philip Reade on "Uniforms Worn in the Revolutionary War" and other topics pertaining to the Revolution.

DOINGS OF STATE SOCIETIES.

✓ The California Society.—On June 16 the San Diego Chapter celebrated Flag Day and Bunker Hill Day by holding a banquet at the San Diego Hotel, when an address was delivered by Hon. J. C. Needham, former Member of Congress.

✓ The Colorado Society.—On the evening of September 18 more than 10,000 school children and adults assembled at the Denver Auditorium to celebrate the centenary of the composition of the "Star Spangled Banner" and the presentation by the public-school children of a flag to the city of Denver for Genesee Park. The celebration was almost entirely under the management of the Sons of the American Revolution and of the Daughters of the American Revolution. All patriotic societies were invited to co-operate and materially assisted in carrying out the plans.

The money for the purchase of the flag was raised by a penny-a-piece contribution from school children of Denver, aggregating $166.24. This plan was conceived and carried out by Dr. Clarkson N. Guyer, chairman of our National Committee on Education.

Besides Compatriot Guyer on the Committee on Arrangements were Compatriots S. D. Butler, chairman of the State Society Board of Managers; Walter D. Wynkoop, State Treasurer, and W. W. Kirby. President William H. Seeds of the Colorado Society was chairman of the committee and presided at the celebration. The program was as follows: Invocation, by Rev. Geo. B. Van Arsdall; America, by high-school chorus and audience; flag drill, by school children; flag salute, by representatives of all Denver public schools; presentation of flag, by Dr. Wm. H. Smiley; acceptance of flag for the city; "Star Spangled Banner," high school and audience; moving-picture drama—the birth of the "Star Spangled Banner."

THE DENVER CHAPTER, on July 11, held its annual picnic at "Rexleigh," the country home of its Historian, Rev. John H. Houghton. The program included an account of the National Congress at Syracuse by Compatriot C. N. Guyer and an address on "How my old home entertained the National Congress, Sons of the American Revolution," by Compatriot W. D. Wynkoop. There was unfurling of a flag at the Episcopal Mission Church by Chapter officials.

✓ The Connecticut Society, on September 16, held its regular summer meeting at Momauguin, near New Haven, attended by about one hundred members and guests from all parts of the State. Following the dinner President General Thruston delivered an address on the "Evolution of the United States Flag," in which he stated many facts of historical importance not generally known in connection with the origin of the "Stars and Stripes." Gov. Simeon E. Baldwin spoke on the advantages of the disarmament of nations and the settlement of disputes between nations by an international court of justice.

On Saturday, June 27, the Washington Journey Pilgrims were met at New Rochelle, N. Y., by the Connecticut Committee. About twenty automobiles were in line as the pilgrimage crossed the State border and was officially welcomed by President Wilson H. Lee of the Connecticut Society, Benjamin R. English of New Haven, chief aide to Marshal Punderson, and other compatriots. At Greenwich the Daughters of the American Revolution were hostesses at the Putnam House, for a time occupied by Gen. Israel Putnam.

At Westport a tablet was unveiled to commemorate the first engagement between the Continental and British troops when Connecticut was invaded, April 26, 1777. Treasurer Sherwood of the State Society introduced the orator of the day, Compatriot William H. Burr, who told the story of the British invasion in 1777 and the gallant defense made by a company of 40 volunteer farmers under Captain Disbrow against about 2,000 armed troops under General Tryon. The pilgrims next viewed the statue of "The Minute Man," at Compo Beach, erected by the Sons of the American Revolution a few years ago to commemorate the Battle of Compo Hill and Compo Beach, in 1777. Passing on through Bridgeport, New Haven was reached early Saturday evening, and the day closed with a shore dinner at Colonnade, West Haven Shore. The exercises on Sunday began with services in the United Church, where a patriotic sermon was preached by Rev. Robert C. Denison, in which he pictured New Haven as it was in 1775 and told the story of the reception to Washington by Yale students gathered on the green, one of their number the afterward distinguished lexicographer, Noah Webster. He reviewed the character of Washington, commenting on his broad humanity, transparent integrity, and his horror of self-seeking ambition. "In single-minded devotion to the welfare of his country, in high sense of honor, in the control of his own spirit, that marshaled all his powers to the patient pursuing of a noble end, he is surpassed by none of the national leaders of history."

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the Second Company Governor's Foot Guard escorted the pilgrims from their headquarters at the Hotel Taft to the Grove Street cemetery, where the graves of 125 patriots were decorated, and speeches were made by Gen. Edward E. Bradley, President of the Gen. David Humphreys Branch; by Compatriot Gov. Simeon E. Baldwin, and by President General Thruston. The exercises began at the grave of Roger Sherman, when Governor Baldwin, his great-grandson, told of the patriotic deeds of his ancestor during the period of the Revolution, his signing of the four charters of American liberty—the Articles of Association, the Declaration of Independence, the Articles of Confederation, and the Constitution of the United States.

At the grave of Gen. David Humphreys, President General Thruston spoke briefly of the characteristics of that soldier.

Returning to the Hotel Taft, a tablet was there dedicated bearing the following inscription:

The patriotic citizens of New Haven | with supreme faith in God | and in the righteousness of the cause | of their country, rallied here | Wednesday, June 28, 1775 | to welcome and bid God speed to | George Washington | who was on his way from Philadelphia | to Cambridge to take command of the Army | of the United Colonies. | He lodged that night at the tavern | of Isaac Beers, which stood on this site. | Early the next morning he reviewed | a company of Yale students on the Green | and was then escorted by | two companies of militia in uniform | and a body of citizens and students | to Neck Bridge, near Cedar Hill. | —Erected by the Connecticut | Society of the Sons of the American Revolution | 1914.

President Wilson H. Lee presided at the dedication and introduced the chairman of the Tablet Committee, Compatriot Seymour C. Loomis, who delivered an address in which he said that "the principal, if not the only, reason we have for erecting and dedicating this tablet here today is to try to emphasize the spirit of the patriotic, God-fearing, and public-spirited men who, at that critical time, were willing to cast their lot on the side which they sincerely believed was the best for their country." The tablet was unveiled by Henry Hotchkiss, five years old, a member of the Washington family and great-great-grandson of Noah Webster. Hon. Henry Wade Rogers, Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and Dean of the Yale Law School, delivered an address describing in detail, with interesting incidents, the visits of Washington to New Haven in 1775, 1776, and 1789. In conclusion he said:

Sons of the American Revolution are engaged in the performance of a high patriotic duty in encouraging greater interest in the preservation of our national traditions and in arousing a more active spirit of patriotism. The pilgrimage now being made * * * has stirred the patriotism of thousands of our countrymen. Those who are making that pilgrimage have been received everywhere with the plaudits of their fellow-citizens. * * * Out of the memory of the past flows the inspiration of the present.

Following the dedication there was a reception at the Hotel Taft.

The pilgrims left New Haven Monday morning, June 29, and on arriving at Wallingford were greeted with ringing of church bells, public buildings and private residences displaying the Stars and Stripes. At Meriden there was a reception at the Goff House, built in 1711, where they were entertained by the Capt. John Couch Branch, S. A. R.

At the old Fuller Tavern, in Berlin, the home of Compatriot Bryan H. Atwater, a welcome was given by the Daughters of the American Revolution. Here a tablet, not then completed, will be erected bearing this inscription: "Fuller Tavern | erected 1769 | in which | George Washington | was entertained November 10, 1789 | on his return trip through the New England States | Erected by the Emma Hart Willard Chap|ter D. A. R. | who here entertained the | National Society S. A. R. | June 29, 1914 | while upon their pilgrimage in cele|bration of Washington's jour|ney from Philadelphia to | Cambridge in | 1775."

At 12.40 o'clock the pilgrims were welcomed at Beckley Quarter by a company of children in Indian dresses and scout suits. At Rocky Hill, for a hundred yards each side of the Chapin House (more than 150 years old), the road was strewn with roses and other blossoms, and garlands were strung from the trees and looped about the shoulders of a score of young ladies in waiting. The painting of Washington and his family at Mount Vernon was impersonated in a tableau on the lawn under the direction of Mrs. Humphrey, who gave the party a cordial reception.

At Wethersfield there was a stop of nearly an hour for rest and visits to the Silas Deane house, now the home of Compatriot Fenn, where Washington dined in 1775, and the Webb house, where he had a conference with Rochambeau in 1781.

At Hartford, late in the afternoon, a reception was held at the home of Dr. George C. F. Williams, former President of the Connecticut Society, attended by the First Company Governor's Foot Guard, dressed in their brilliant black and scarlet uniform. A special exhibit of medals, badges, coins, and tokens relating to the life of Washington was made at the Morgan Memorial for the inspection of the pilgrims. Leaving Hartford Tuesday morning, June 30, the journey was resumed, with stops at Windsor to view the Loomis Institute and the museum maintained by the Ellsworth Association of the D. A. R. From there the party passed through Windsor Locks and Suffield to the State line, at Agawam, and on to Springfield.

The members of the National Committee in charge of the celebration in Connecticut were President Wilson H. Lee, chairman; Capt. Clarence H. Wickham, and Hon. Morris B. Beardsley.

The Empire State Society.—The Independence Day Celebration at the City Hall, New York, at 10 o'clock a. m., July 4, was held under the auspices of the Sons of the American Revolution, who, with President Louis Annin Ames, acted as escort to the Mayor. The program was as follows: Music, march, "Civic Fame," Fanciulli; "America," chorus and people; address by Hon. Martin W. Littleton, chairman; overture, "Rienzi," Wagner; address by Hon. John Purroy Mitchel, Mayor of the City of New York; song, "Our Country's Flag," words by Hal Bell; symphonic poem, "Les Preludes," Liszt; address by Hon. William A. Prendergast, Comptroller of the City of New York; "Fantasie on Favorite Operas," Mussi; address by Hon. Marcus M. Marks, President of the Borough of Manhattan; (a) "My Old Kentucky Home," (b) "Dixie Land"; reading of the Declaration of Independence by Edward Hagaman Hall, L. H. D.; "Star Spangled Banner."

The Declaration of Independence was read to the Continental Army in New York, in the presence of Washington, on the common, called the Field, later City Hall Park, July 9, 1776. Upon this common the Sons of Liberty had for ten years erected their liberty poles. Here Alexander Hamilton trained his artillery company in 1776.

Members of the Empire State Society resident in Paris followed the usual custom on July 4 of placing an American flag on the tomb of Lafayette, in the little cemetery at the rear of No. 35 Rue Picpus. Notice was given on June 21 at the American church by Rev. Caspar Wistar Hiatt, D. D., and all Americans were invited to attend.

The Washington Journey pilgrims reached New York City about 4 o'clock, Thursday, June 25, and were taken in charge by President Louis Annin Ames and Compatriot Albert J. Squier, chairman of the Empire State Reception Committee. The first ceremony was at 198 Hudson street, where a tablet was dedicated to mark the site of the country mansion of Leonard Lispenard, where Washington was entertained in 1775. Addresses were made by ex-President General William A. Marble, President Ames, and by Compatriot Newell B. Woodworth of the National Executive Committee. The tablet was unveiled by Miss Angelica Schuyler Church, great-great-granddaughter of Gen. Philip Schuyler, who accompanied Washington on his journey.

A reception was held at the Hotel Martinique in the evening, when Dr. Edward Hagaman Hall delivered an illustrated lecture on Revolutionary points of interest in Greater New York.

Friday morning there was a reception in the Governor's room at the City Hall by Hon. John Purroy Mitchel, Mayor of New York, followed by a visit to Fraunce's Tavern, where the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution was organized on April 30, 1889. Here, in the old dining-room, where Washington delivered the farewell address to his officers, the pilgrims gathered, and were welcomed by Secretary Henry Russell Drown of the Sons of the Revolution, who now own the building.

About 11.30 o'clock exercises were held at the Subtreasury building on Wall street, Col. John W. Vrooman, Vice-President of the Empire State Society, presiding. An address was delivered by ex-President General Cornelius A. Pugsley, and Compatriot Norman P. Heffley, chairman of the New York Committee on the Journey Celebration, read the congratulatory address presented to General Washington by the Provincial Congress and his reply thereto in 1775. During the afternoon the pilgrims visited the Navy Yard, Fort Greene Park, where exercises were held at the Prison Ship Martyrs' Monument, and Prospect Park, in Brooklyn, where President General Thruston laid a wreath on the monument to the Maryland troops who saved the American army from destruction during the Battle of Long Island.

At a banquet at the Hotel Martinique in the evening addresses were delivered by President General Thruston, Mrs. William Cumming Story, President General of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and Brig. Gen. R. K. Evans, U. S. Army, commanding the Department of the East.

On Saturday morning, at 9.45 o'clock, a tablet was dedicated at Kingsbridge, Treasurer General Burroughs delivering the address. It was here that Washington and his party stopped over night. The program of patriotic exercises at the Saint Paul's Church, East Chester (Mount Vernon), at 10.30 a. m., was participated in by 175 children of De Witt Clinton School, escorted by several companies of Boys' Brigades and Boy Scouts of Mount Vernon. President Ames presided. Compatriot Edwin F. Fiske, Mayor, welcomed the pilgrims. President General Thruston responded. Other exercises were: "Washington's Commission," by Mrs. Joseph S. Wood, Vice-President General, D. A. R.; historic reading, Washington's Journey, by Mrs. F. W. Midgley, Regent of Bronx Chapter; presentation of Washington's portrait to De Witt Clinton School by President Ames, in behalf of Empire State Society; salute to the flag; song, "The Old Flag Never Touched the Ground, Boys," sung as the pilgrims took their departure.

On suggestion of President Briggs, the Chapter instructed James E. Somes, Past President of the Indiana Society, to use his effort in supplying a genealogical department in the city. Dr. J. R. Morgan of Kokomo, President of the Indiana Society, briefly reviewed the Syracuse Congress.

Ex-President General Hon. Henry Stockbridge was appointed by President General Thruston to represent the National Society on that occasion. Ex-President General Edwin Warfield was chairman of the Committee on Patriotic Organizations, and many other members of the Maryland Society were officially connected with the celebration.

More than ninety members, with guests, including many ladies, arrived by carriage and automobiles at the Wayside Inn for dinner at 1 o'clock. On the way from Concord stops were made at Sudbury to view places of historic interest, and a visit was made to the church built in 1776. After dinner, Vice-President Frank E. Woodward, chairman of the committee, introduced President Luther Atwood, whose address was followed by addresses by former President Nathan Warren, Edward R. Lemon, the proprietor of Wayside Inn; Mrs. Nellie Rice Fiske, Regent of Wayside Inn Chapter, D. A. R., and Brig. Gen. Philip Reade closed the speaking with an historic sketch of Sudbury and its remarkable record of men who served in the Revolution.

Tuesday, June 30, the Washington Journey pilgrims entered Massachusetts, reaching Springfield, the home of Chief Marshal Punderson, at 1.15 o'clock, welcomed by the municipal chimes, and going directly to the Country Club for lunch. In the afternoon they toured the city. At the old Day House the pilgrims and members of the Mercy Warren Chapter, D. A. R., were entertained by the Ramopogue Historical Society. The evening exercises opened with a concert of patriotic airs on the municipal chimes. In the auditorium, at 7.45 o'clock, there was a reception by the George Washington Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution, which was first to suggest the celebration of the journey. At 8.15 o'clock formal exercises began with a concert by the second regiment band. Dr. John MacDuffie, President of the George Washington Chapter, presided and introduced Rev. Dr. Neil McPherson, who delivered an address, in which he lauded the high character of Washington and reviewed his remarkable achievements as a soldier and statesman. Formal presentation was made to the city of a bronze tablet erected by the George Washington Chapter on Court Square to mark the site of Parson's Tavern. A medal was presented to Miss Elva Laura Howard for the best essay on Washington's journey from Philadelphia to Cambridge. The presentation was made by President General Thruston, who urged the medalist to continue in the study of the great deeds of America's history.

Wednesday morning, July 1, the pilgrimage left Springfield and journeyed on toward Worcester, tarrying briefly at Palmer under the Washington elm, where the party was welcomed by the singing of 200 school children, and brief addresses were made by Dr. Orrin Peer Allen of the Palmer Historical Society, President Atwood of the Massachusetts Society and President General Thruston. Warren was reached at 12.15 o'clock, and a brief stop was made at the old Dwight Tavern, now the home of John W. Keith, said to be the house where Washington stopped for the night on his journey to Cambridge in 1775. The town was gaily decorated with flags and bunting.

At West Brookfield "George and Martha Washington" were impersonated to welcome the pilgrims, and a company of war veterans were assembled at the old tavern, which was decorated with large flags. At Brookfield 300 people were gathered in front of the town house to bid the party welcome and flags were generally displayed. At Spencer a granite marker, the gift of the Oraskaso Historical Society, was dedicated, with the following inscription: "George Washington passed through Spencer to take command of the Continental Army at Cambridge, 1775. While President of the United States he spent the night of October 22, 1789, at Jenks Tavern, located at this site."

At Leicester hundreds were assembled on the town common to pay tribute to the pilgrims, and the historian of the Col. William Henshaw Chapter, D. A. R., gave a brief account of Leicester's part in the Revolution.

The pilgrimage arrived at Worcester Wednesday afternoon, July 1, and was welcomed by Dr. John C. Berry, President of the Worcester Chapter, and a reception committee of Daughters of the American Revolution and others. The party assembled at the Bancroft Hotel at 4 o'clock and took up the line of march to Lincoln Square before the Court House, where with simple ceremonies a tablet was unveiled bearing this inscription: "Gen. George Washington passed this spot July 2, 1775, on his journey from Philadelphia to Cambridge to take command of the Continental Army. Erected in 1914 by the S. R., S. A. R., D. R., and D. A. R." The pilgrims were escorted by a cavalcade led by a number of gentlemen riders in early Colonial riding costumes mounted on well-known racing horses. The tablet was formally presented to the city by President Berry of the Worcester Chapter and accepted by the President of the Common Council. President General Thruston spoke briefly of the life of Washington. At a dinner at the Bancroft Hotel in the evening, attended by a large number of members and ladies, Mayor Wright welcomed the pilgrims to Worcester, and brief speeches were made by President General Thruston, Col. R. W. Guthrie, Newell B. Woodworth, and Judge William T. Forbes.

From Worcester, Thursday morning, July 2, began the last stage of the memorable journey. The first stop was at Shrewsbury, where the pilgrims visited the homestead of Gen. Artemas Ward, who commanded the Colonial forces before Boston until the arrival of General Washington. The party was met at the Shrewsbury-Worcester line by members of the Shrewsbury Historical Society in thirteen automobiles, representing the thirteen original colonies. At Marlboro the party was entertained by the Gen. Joseph Badger Chapter, D. A. R., and visited the Williams Tavern, where Washington stopped in 1789.

The old "Red Horse" Tavern in Sudbury, built in 1686, and immortalized by Longfellow as the Wayside Inn, was reached in time for lunch. There they were met by the Boston Fusilier Veterans, 50 strong, under the command of Major James W. H. Myrick, and by a detail of five from the Lexington Minute Men, the soldiers having come from Boston in automobiles to escort the pilgrimage the rest of the way to Cambridge. There, too, a delegation from Old Essex Chapter, S. A. R., headed by President Horace H. Atherton, joined the party and assisted in dedicating the marker it had erected on the public highway immediately in front of the inn.

Then three more markers were dedicated, one in Waltham and two in Watertown. That in Waltham was located on West street, near the old Stafford Tavern. It was unveiled by Miss Persis Stearns, granddaughter of Col. Ephraim Stearns, and was presented by President Luther Atwood of the Massachusetts Society to President Boardman of the Boston Chapter, and in turn by Dr. Boardman to President General Thruston. Mr. Thruston presented it to the city of Waltham, on whose behalf it was accepted by Mayor Kearns.

Of the two tablets dedicated in Watertown, one, located in front of the Free Library, had been given by the S. A. R., and one, located inside the cemetery fence, corner of Common and Auburn streets, by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company. The ceremony was much the same in each case. The red-coated Fusiliers and more somberly garbed Minute Men drew up in line behind the tablet, and short speeches of presentation were made, in the one case by Col. R. W. Guthrie of the Pennsylvania Society, who was introduced by President Atwood, and in the other by Capt. James D. Coady of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company. In each case the tablet was formally accepted on behalf of the town by Chairman Wesley E. Monk of the Board of Selectmen.

Then the automobiles, those which had started from Philadelphia and those which had left Boston that morning, changed their course a trifle to enable pilgrims and escort to accept the hospitality of the Howard Brothers, Capt. Fred H. of the Fusiliers and Abraham L. of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company and the Fusiliers, and half an hour or so was spent very pleasantly with them.

At a banquet at the Hotel Somerset, on the evening of July 2, addresses were made by President General Thruston; President Atwood of the Massachusetts Society, who presided; Rev. Prescott Evans of Cambridge, and State Senator Edward Robbins of Pennsylvania.

Patriotic exercises, on Friday, July 3, near the Washington elm on Cambridge Common, completed the commemorative march. The pilgrims entered Cambridge accompanied by details from the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, Lieut. S. C. L. Haskell commanding, the Lexington Minute Men, under the command of Major George F. Reed and headed by drummer and fifer dressed to represent the Spirit of '76, the Fusilier Veteran Corps, Major J. W. H. Myrick commanding, and the 7th Company, C. A. C., M. V. M., commanded by Corporal M. F. Smith. Brig. Gen. Charles K. Darling was chief marshal, with Capt. Fred E. Bolton chief of staff and Capt. James D. Coady, commander of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company and member of Governor Walsh's staff, an honorary aide.

The exercises at the elm were in charge of Albert F. Amee of Cambridge, with President Luther Atwood of the Massachusetts Society as presiding officer. They included patriotic singing by children from the Thorndike school, addresses of welcome by Mayor Good of Cambridge, G. P. Gardner, Jr., one of the secretaries to the Harvard corporation, and Stoughton Bell of the Cambridge Board of Trade, and an historical address by President General Thruston.

Later in the morning the pilgrims were entertained by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, through the commissioned officers and sergeants who had paraded, in its Faneuil Hall armory, and had an opportunity to inspect its collection of Colonial and Revolutionary relics.

The members of the National Committee in charge of the Washington Journey celebration in Massachusetts were Gen. Philip Reade, chairman; Henry F. Punderson, and George Maury Rice.

THE GEORGE WASHINGTON CHAPTER held its spring meeting at the Hotel Worthy, Springfield, on the evening of June 17, when final plans were made for the entertainment of the Washington Journey Pilgrimage on June 30 and the dedication of a marker on the site of Parson's Tavern, where Washington stopped for rest and refreshment. Gold badges of the Society were presented to President MacDuffie, Vice-President Punderson, and Compatriot Spaulding for success in bringing new members into the Society. Historian W. F. Emerson read an essay on "The Siege of Boston."

✓ The New Jersey Society, on July 4, dedicated a tablet on the Paramus Reformed Church at Ridgewood. The inscription reads: "Nisi Dominus frustra | Near this house of God | encamped | General Washington and his | army in 1778 | In grateful tribute to the memory | of the patriots who sleep in the | adjacent churchyard and to the | men and women of this community | who assisted so valiantly in | the establishment of American | Independence | This tablet is placed by | the New Jersey Society of the | Sons of the American Revolution | July 4th, 1914."

Judge Cornelius Doremus, President of the Paramus Chapter, opened the exercises on the church lawn, and the Chaplain, Rev. John A. Van Neste, delivered the invocation. John Brewer Wight, First Vice-President of the New Jersey Society, called the color-bearers to the front, and the pledge to the flag was rendered according to the ritual of the Sons of the American Revolution, followed by the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner." President J. L. Merrill of the New Jersey Society emphasized the fact that the Sons of the American Revolution represented no class spirit. Rev. William H. Vroom, D. D., of Paterson, a former pastor, narrated the history of the Paramus Church. The tablet was formally delivered by Historian General Pierson, chairman of the State Society Committee on Monuments and Memorials, and after its presentation to the church by President Merrill was accepted by the pastor, Rev. Henry D. Cook. The erection of the tablet was suggested and made possible by Richard T. Wilson, Vice-President of the Paramus Chapter.

The State Society has offered a gold insignia to the New Jersey Chapter securing the largest number of new members for the State Society who also join the Chapter between April 1, 1914, and March 31, 1915.

At noon on Tuesday, June 23, the automobile pilgrimage, which had left Philadelphia that morning in celebration of Washington's journey, arrived at the New Jersey side of the Delaware River and was met by the New Jersey committee. Proceeding to the State House in Trenton the party was received by the Governor and an historical address on the battles of Trenton was delivered by Adjutant General Sadler. At 1.45 o'clock the first tablet marking Washington's route was dedicated on St. Michael's Episcopal Church. The party then continued their way to Princeton, visiting en route Stony Brook Cemetery, where a wreath was placed on the grave of Richard Stockton, Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

At Old Nassau Hall President Hibben of Princeton University received the pilgrims and delivered an address on the work of that institution in equipping the youth for life's work. At the Princeton Cemetery a wreath was placed on the tomb of John Witherspoon, Signer of the Declaration, and an address on the life of Witherspoon was made by Professor Libbey, the General Secretary of the Sons of the Revolution. Late in the afternoon a visit was made to Washington's headquarters at Rocky Hill.

On Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock there was a reception at Rutgers College, New Brunswick, when President Demarest delivered an address on the lives of some of those associated with the college during the Revolution. At noon the second tablet to mark the route was unveiled on the Second Reformed Church by Compatriot Newell B. Woodworth, President of the Syracuse, N. Y., Chapter. In the afternoon a trip was made to Monmouth Battlefield, the party being met near Englishtown by President Tompkins of the Monmouth Chapter and Troop B Squadron of the New Jersey Militia. At the old Tennent Church the exercises included on oration by Compatriot Cowart on the Battle of Monmouth. Returning to New Brunswick for the evening, the pilgrims were the guests of the Regent of the Jersey Blue Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Thursday morning at 7.20 o'clock the journey was resumed, and at 8.15 there was assembled in the Colonial Cemetery at Rahway a goodly company of men, women, and children to greet the pilgrims and to participate in patriotic exercises at the grave of Abraham Clark, Signer of the Declaration. At Elizabeth the great bell of the old First Church rang out a welcome. President Bassett of the Elizabethtown Chapter and Chaplain General Whitaker greeted the pilgrims with appropriate addresses, and brief remarks were made by President General Thruston and President Merrill.

In Newark the third tablet was dedicated at the corner of Broad and Market streets with brief ceremonies, including a brief address by the Historian General on the objects of the pilgrimage. At the equestrian statue of Washington, in Washington Park, about a thousand school children were assembled, each carrying an American flag, and at other school buildings in Newark and Orange en route to Morristown the pupils were massed to greet the pilgrims. At Springfield a wreath was placed on the statue of the Minute Man in the churchyard. Morristown was reached about 1 o'clock, and lunch was served in the Lafayette rooms, adjoining Washington's headquarters. The party returned to Newark by way of Eagle Rock Park, Llewellyn Park, and Branch Brook Park, and proceeded to Jersey City over the Lincoln Highway, crossing to New York by the Desbrosses Street ferry.

The members of the National Committee in charge of the pilgrimage through New Jersey were David L. Pierson, chairman; Dr. George H. Richards, and Thomas Wright Williams.

MONMOUTH CHAPTER celebrated the anniversary of the Battle of Monmouth (June 28), on Saturday, June 27, with a luncheon at Asbury Park.

MORRIS COUNTY CHAPTER has been organized, with headquarters at Morristown, with 22 charter members. Edward Q. Keasbey is the founder of the Chapter.

ORANGE CHAPTER observed Flag Day, June 14, by attending patriotic services at the Orange Valley Congregational Church. Compatriot Rev. George P. Eastman, pastor, preached a sermon upon "The Flag and Its Mission."

David L. Pierson, Historian General and President of Orange Chapter, acted as master of ceremonies in Orange on Memorial Day, May 30, when two bronze cannon, donated by the United States Government, were dedicated at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Statue on Military Common. Exercises at the North Orange Baptist Church, at which Mr. Pierson presided, concluded the day's ceremonies.

A program has been prepared for the new season, which is to embrace a number of papers to be delivered monthly by various members of the Chapter. The Chapter has induced the State Society to offer a solid gold jewel as a prize to the Chapter enrolling the largest number of members during the Society year ending March 31, 1915. The Chapter securing the prize is to determine its final disposition.

The President awarded three bronze medals during the commencement exercises in June for the best essay by high-school students on "The Principles of the American Revolution." All were secured by young men, the students competing being those of East Orange, Orange, and South Orange.

On Independence Day the President made three appointments. He presided at exercises at Dispatch Rider Statue in Orange, at the old burying ground, in the morning; made a speech at the exercises at the Paramus Church at Ridgewood, where a tablet was dedicated, in the afternoon, and at Watsessing Park, East Orange, in the evening, where he delivered an address on "The Suffering for American Independence."

✓ The North Carolina Society awarded a gold medal for the best essay on Col. Waighstill Avery to W. Herman Stephenson of Raleigh, a recent graduate of the Raleigh High School. The essay is printed in the Raleigh News and Observer of June 21, 1914. Colonel Avery was born at Groton, Conn., in 1741; graduated from Princeton in 1766; studied law in Maryland; went to North Carolina in 1769; was a member of the Provincial Congress in 1775. He was the first Attorney General of that State and resigned that office in 1779 to become Colonel of Militia. He died in 1821.

✓ The Oregon Society celebrated the centennial of the writing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by a smoker and collation at the University Club in Portland on September 14. The celebration was given jointly with the Oregon Commandery of the Loyal Legion. The paper of the evening was read by Compatriot John L. Travis, city editor of the Oregon Evening Journal. His subject was "The National Flag and the National Anthem." He explained the manner in which the Stars and Stripes came to be adopted as the banner of the Republic and spoke of the glory which had been won for them on the sea by Paul Jones in the Revolution and by Isaac Hull, Oliver Hazard Perry, and others in the War of 1812. He went fully into the circumstances under which the national anthem was written by Francis Scott Key and concluded his paper with a discussion of the hold the flag had on the affections of the people. An even hundred gentlemen were present. Announcement was made that the Board of Managers desired two veterans of the Civil War to volunteer as color-bearers when the National Congress convenes in Portland in 1915. T. B. McDevitt, a veteran of the First Massachusetts Cavalry, and John W. Curran, a veteran of the Thirteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry, responded and were named as color-bearers for the 1915 Congress. Other committees were announced as given on another page of this BULLETIN. The Society has elected as Registrar Alfred F. Parker, 330 Northwestern Bank Building, Portland.

✓ The Pennsylvania Society has published an octavo pamphlet of sixty-two pages, containing papers read at meetings in the fall and winter of 1912, 1913, and 1914, on Benjamin Franklin, James Wilson, and James Smith, Signers of the Declaration of Independence, and on Washington's Philadelphia Campaign in 1777. There has also been issued a small pamphlet on the "Purposes and Objects of the Society," etc., with an account of the annual meeting and a list of members.

The State Society and the Philadelphia Chapter were the generous hosts of the pilgrims, as they began the celebration of Washington's journey. On Monday, June 22, there was an automobile trip through Germantown, with its many historic buildings and sites, to Valley Forge, where lunch was served and the sites of the various encampments were viewed, with a visit to the Washington Memorial Chapel, where a brief address was delivered by Rev. W. Herbert Burk. At a banquet at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, in the evening, commemorating the farewell dinner to Washington in 1775, addresses were made by President Veale, presiding; President General Thruston, former Chaplain General Warfield, General Coryell, and by ex-Governor Pennypacker, who told of Pennsylvania's part in the Revolution.

On the morning of June 23 the pilgrimage began, about seventy-five members and guests leaving the Bellevue-Stratford in motor-cars for Trenton, the first stopping place, a distance of 32 miles, where the duties of the Pennsylvania Committee ended and the pilgrims were taken in charge by a committee of the New Jersey Society.

The members of the National Committee in charge of the celebration in Pennsylvania were Col. R. W. Guthrie, chairman; Clarence P. Wynne, and Herman W. Fernberger.

✓ The Rhode Island Society announces the death, on October 3, 1914, of Amasa Mason Eaton, President of the Society in 1893. "He was a charter member, and Secretary in 1891, and has done a great deal of good work for the Society. The Society has lost one of its most interested members. We shall miss him very much, especially in our memorial services at Esek Hopkins' monument on Memorial Day. It will be hard to fill his place."

✓ The Tennessee Society.—On June 15 Vice-President General William K. Boardman, Secretary of the Tennessee Society, presented a flag for the high-school playground in Nashville with appropriate ceremonies, including an address by President Leland Hume. The Society has enrolled as a member a son of Joseph Greer, Kings Mountain Messenger. On the occasion of the dedication, in May, of a tablet marking the grave of Joseph Greer at Petersburg, Compatriot Boardman delivered an address on the Battle of Kings Mountain. Messenger Greer, after an arduous journey, brought the news of the victory to the Continental Congress at Philadelphia.

✓ The Utah Society.—Rt. Rev. Franklin Spencer Spalding, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Utah, was almost instantly killed when struck by an automobile in Salt Lake City on September 25. A delegation of the Utah Society, of which Bishop Spalding was Chaplain, attended the funeral.

We cannot better express our tribute to the memory of our late compatriot, the Rt. Rev. Franklin Spencer Spalding, the Chaplain of this Society, than by adopting the words of our gifted compatriot, Charles Carroll Goodwin:

"Cut down in the full vigor of a marvelous mental and physical manhood, his death is a great shock and sorrow and loss to our Commonwealth.

"Strong physically, pure by instinct, intellectually brilliant, devoted to the work of the Master, unawed by wealth, warm in his sympathies, he strove to make the world happier by reducing the burden of its sorrow."

He was an example of the strong, vigorous, heroic stock which fought the Revolutionary War and dedicated this continent to liberty and made it a haven for the oppressed of all climes and nations. To his bereaved family we, the Utah Society, Sons of the American Revolution, extend our heartfelt sympathy.

✓ The Vermont Society, on July 30, dedicated at Winooski, opposite Burlington, a tablet to mark the site of the Block House erected by the first settlers in 1773. The tablet bears the following inscription: "Near this site | in 1773 | the first settlers | Ira Allen and his cousin Re- | member Baker | built of hewed timbers the | Block House called | Fort Frederick | as a protection from Indians | and Yorkers. | It had 32 port holes and in it | were held | the meetings of the | proprietors of Burlington | between June 6, 1774, and May 1, | 1775. | Ira Allen being clerk. | Later this house stood a few | rods northeast of here | with a large garden and in it | was held the | first session of county court. | November, 1785. | Below the falls Allen built | the schooner "Liberty." | * * * | Erected by the | Vermont Society | Sons of the American Revolution. | July, 1914."

The ceremonies included a parade, participated in by United States Cavalry from Fort Ethan Allen, the First Regiment Vermont National Guard, numerous civic organizations, and a number of historical floats. The occasion was a gala day in the town, factories being closed, and almost the entire population assembled on the town green to listen to the addresses. President Frederick S. Pease of the Vermont Society made a brief presentation speech and the tablet was accepted by the town authorities.

Secretary Walter H. Crockett delivered an address, reviewing the early history of the region and the struggles of the first settlers. The life history of Ira Allen, younger brother of Ethan Allen, was related in detail.

President General Thruston delivered the closing address, in which he spoke of the inspiring character of Vermont scenery. He did not wonder that Vermonters reared among the beautiful Green Mountains loved their land. Loyalty and patriotism must be natural to them, he said. He then took up the example set by the two Allen brothers, Ethan and Ira, of unflinching service and indomitable spirit.

Mr. Thruston said: "We are here to dedicate a marker of an old block house." "Do you know what a block house was?" He explained the construction of the old block house, how it was roughly built of hewn logs and was usually about 16 by 20 feet in size. He said that the block house was the arsenal and the fort of the community, and went on to tell of the type of fortified settlement common in the early times of his own State of Kentucky.

The speaker told of the courage shown in those early days by the women as well as the men, and told one story of Fort Bryant, how 16 women risked their lives by going into the very ambush of the Indians to get water for the besieged, trusting to the chance that the Indians would not attach importance enough to the tomahawking of a few women to expose their whereabouts by breaking out upon the water-carriers.

Mr. Thruston spoke stirringly of the Revolution and of the one great Revolutionary hero whose identity with his native colony was lost in his Americanism—George Washington. He went on to tell of the character of Washington and of the Revolution. He characterized the Revolution as not so much a struggle between England and the colonies as a phase of the civilization of the time—a war fought against the despotism of monarchs.

In closing his address Mr. Thruston related the historical evolution of the American emblem out of the British flag into the flag we know. He told, finally, how after the admission of Kentucky and Vermont, at the suggestion of a Vermonter in the national legislature, two stars and two stripes were added to the original 13 in recognition of these States, making a flag with 15 stars and 15 stripes, which remained the nation's flag for 23 years, until 1818, when it was changed to 13 stripes and a star for each State. "It was a flag of 15 stars and 15 stripes flying over Fort McHenry during its bombardment in 1814 that inspired Francis Scott Key to write the 'Star Spangled Banner.'" A reproduction of the original Fort McHenry flag was then presented by Mr. Thruston to the Vermont Society as a gift from the Kentucky Society of the Sons of the American Revolution; and as the flag was unfurled and waved over the heads of the audience the band began playing "The Star Spangled Banner," the words of which were taken up by a chorus of singers massed at one side of the stand. The flag was accepted on behalf of the Vermont Society by the Hon. Robert Roberts.

On the evening of July 30 President General Thruston and Secretary General Clark, with other guests, were entertained by the Vermont Society at a banquet at the Van Ness House, Burlington. Following the dinner Mr. Thruston talked of the work of the National Society in various activities of national character and importance distinct from the patriotic work of State Societies. Among other things, he spoke of the need of a National Archive building at Washington and the efforts of the National Society in that direction. Valuable government records are now scattered in many inflammable buildings, barns, wet and damp basements, for which the government pays a yearly rental of $75,000. Mr. Thruston also gave an account of the pilgrimage over the route of Washington's journey to Cambridge in 1775.

The Vermont Society has published its Year Book and Roster for 1913-1914, revised to September 1, 1914. It is a pamphlet of 74 pages and contains the proceedings of the annual meeting of November 12, 1913; constitution and by-laws; membership rolls; sketches of members deceased, and reports of proceedings at the dedication of markers at North Hero, July 4, 1913, and at Shelburne, October 28, 1913.
